

Bitcoin Forum

Special => Staff Forum => Topic started by: satoshi on November 20, 2009, 12:37:24 AM

Title: SMF Config Notes

Post by: satoshi on November 20, 2009, 12:37:24 AM

I left the admin account set to the original SMF theme so if I somehow completely wedge the custom theme I can still get in to fix it.

I've got a neat little 12x12 coin image to replace those pip stars with. Should look nice. Also some nice button images to try.

The registration page has "hide your e-mail address" unchecked by default. I must fix that in php before we can open up.

The Announcements forum is currently moderator access only.

Title: Re: SMF Config Notes

Post by: satoshi on November 21, 2009, 01:42:43 AM

12x12 coin for pip stars done.

Registration page "hide your e-mail address" checked by default done, haven't tested it yet.

Title: Re: SMF Config Notes

Post by: sirius on December 23, 2009, 06:27:08 AM

Changed the registration to require e-mail confirmation. The confirmation mail contains the user-given password, this might need fixing.

Title: Re: SMF Config Notes

Post by: satoshi on January 14, 2010, 03:36:36 PM

Is there any reason to have e-mail confirmation?

If you're doing that out of spam concerns, I've already got that covered. I made some customizations to the registration HTML so any spambots designed for SMF won't be able to figure it out. The CAPTCHA image URL requires an extra parameter, and there are 3 different CAPTCHA images, but only one shows because the others have stuff like width=0 height=0.

Title: Re: SMF Config Notes

Post by: sirius on January 15, 2010, 12:59:07 AM

Yes, spam prevention was the purpose, but if there's no spam problem with immediate registration, I'll turn the e-mail activation off.